Court of Honour Minutes

The Trek Cart

"We had a snifter offer from Stan Seaberg to build a new trek cart if we supply the necessary materials. His offer was accepted with thanks. The new cart to cost roughly £3.10.0. D S. M Coutts was given power to sell the old cart for no less than ten shillings."

Acting Secretary

D. J. McDermott

Secretary N Wakeham

The Trek Cart became a very necessary part of the Troop's equipment. It had centre pole with a cross bar in front and there were ropes attached providing for a team of eight to help pulling it. Owen Patching remembers that in 1916 the cart was loaded with large bell tents and camp gear and pulled from ~~Petersham~~ <sup>Petersham</sup> to the Como camping ground. On another occasion the Trek Cart was taken from Campbelltown to Bulli. The cart was still in use in the 1920's for local transport jobs and remained a favourite display item for many years. It could be readily taken apart, carried over an obstacle and re-assembled all in a matter of a few minutes.

Uniforms

At first scouts used their own ingenuity for a uniform but soon a white cricketer's shirt and a black naval scarf was adopted along with a broadbrimmed cadet hat. Other accessories included a white lanyard (cord) with a whistle on the end, a clasp knife and a leather money pouch worn on a belt. The scout stave (staff) was considered indispensable. It was marked in feet and inches and was said to be used for keeping a crowd back, making a stretcher or flag pole, keeping off a dog and for all kinds of tasks at camps. Staff drill was a regular activity on meeting nights and was carried on marches. The popular cry from boys in the street was 'Here come the broomstick warriors.'

The scarf (called a muffler) was originally a square of material folded diagonally. Worn around the neck, it was knotted in the front, and the two corners had tiny knots to remind the scout of his 'good deed for the day.' It had a very practical use for bandaging fractures and as a sling.

The whistle cord was always subjected to a close inspection, consequently points were often lost because of its 'grubby' appearance.

Camping and bushwalking have remained a major activity of 1st Leichhardt. Every Holiday Week-end and at Easter and Christmas has found the scouts under canvas. In the early years the popular camping grounds were Como, Coalcliff and Stanwell Park. Later Waterfall (Camp Coutts) and Campbelltown (The Woolwash). A regular walk was from Mossvale to Nowra staying overnight at Fitzroy Falls, Kangaroo Valley and at Camberwarra Look-out. Rover Scouts did more adventurous hikes over Mount Solitary (Blue Mountains) and through Burragorang Valley (now a dam). Several parties canoed down the Shoalhaven River from Tallong.

Before about 1924 the whole of the Camp's cooking was done on a central open fire using Kerosene tins and large boiling pans. The food was then distributed to messes of about 8. There was always plenty of food. Rolled oats or Grains, (these were pre-cornflake days) boiled eggs, stewed steak, stewed chops, stewed sausages. Tins of corned beef, salmon, herrings and tomato sauce, and sardines. (Baked beans & spaghetti came later) For sweets there were prunes and rice, dates, stewed or fresh fruit plus thick slices of a tin loaf of bread with jam, honey or golden syrup.

The camp routine was announced by bugle calls. 'Reveille' (fallen Get out of bed. You lazy head) 'Assembly' "Fallin A. Fallin B" "Come to the Cook House Door Boys" 'Pick em Up Hot Potatoes' etc. Washing up was always done in the river, using sand to get the grease off.

It was stated that the bugle patrol was not composed of decent blowers. It was suggested to have a competition for buglers. The two side drums and the base drum also be competed for. The selection of players for the other two side drums to be kept open

The Bugle Band

Buglers & Drummers were always at meetings, parades and camps from 1912 or earlier. The tradition of a march around the local streets always attracted new recruits. One of our finest scouts Harry Reynold describes how he persuaded his father to let him tag along behind the marchers in 1921 and join the troop as a cub

Mr Coutts, although not a player, knew all the bugle calls & drum beats and encouraged many to learn. Some outstanding players were Bob Muir, Joey Hunter and George Giles and later George Mason & Fred Gunner. Fred played the reveille at 6:00 AM every morning at the 2nd Australian Jamboree at Bradfield Park, Lindfield December 1938 - January 1939
